ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

A note of appreciation to the many people who have made this book possible:

First of all, to the many scholars who contributed to the four-volume history of universities, edited by Walter Rüegg and featured in the “Further Reading” section of this book.

Second, to Professor Joel Rosenthal of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, who read the entire manuscript. His learned comments and criticism led to substantial improvements. Of course, he is not responsible for errors or opinions in my text.

Third, to Professor Stanislao Pugliese of Hofstra University (and my former student at Hofstra), who smoothed the way for the book’s publication.

Fourth, to my luncheon companions who, for many years, have welcomed me to their weekly lunch and who have contributed, directly or indirectly, to my efforts. All are professors somehow associated with Indiana University, and most have served there in the Department of the History and Philosophy of Science: Noretta Koertge, Edward Grant, John Walbridge, the late Frederick Churchill, Rega Wood, Ronald Giere, Jon Michael Dunn, and Frances Trix.

Fifth, to the Department of History at Indiana University for facilitating my access to the Wells Library of Indiana University.

Finally, to my family, who have long provided direct or indirect support for my scholarly efforts: my late wife, Patricia Ann Moore, and my children, John Jr., Joan Vanore, Carolyn Moore, and Mary Vukelich.
